With the "Peer Mentoring" program, we would like to support international doctoral students on their way from the start to the successful completion of their doctorate in a target group-oriented manner and promote collegial cooperation and consultation in the peer group. Peer mentoring consists of a "kickoff" event and regular meetings within the group, guided and accompanied by our PhD coach Dr. Schoelen and Dr. Schultheis.

The peer mentoring program will initially be offered as a digital format. In regular meetings, the group of a maximum of 17 participants is coached on a wide variety of topics such as writer's block, time management, supervision conflicts, or publication challenges. In addition, several smaller peer groups come together to exchange ideas and support each other in addition to the meetings as a whole group.

Topics:
- Introduction to the method of Collegial Consultation
- Introduction into Time-Management and Project Management
- Relationship to the supervisor
- Writing Methods
- Reflection of your milestones und Future Perspectives

The 6-7 month program is aimed for international doctoral students, primarily from the Faculty of Agriculture and Natural Sciences, who are interested in professional coaching combined with collegial exchange in a confidential atmosphere. Registration is required.
