

The Department of Economics at the University of Bonn, Germany, invites applications for a Full professorship (W3) in Macroeconomics.

We are looking for an established and excellent researcher, with high international visibility, in the field of macroeconomics. The successful candidate will have demonstrated by his or her publications in the best international journals the skill of both applying state-of-the-art modeling of dynamic macroeconomics and of analysing such economies empirically using aggregated and/or disaggregated data.

Within this range, applications from a wide range of fields will be considered on equal footing: monetary economics, business cycles, labor economics, macroeconomic development and sustainability, public economics, household finance, macro-finance, international economics, and applied macro-econometrics.

Particular strengths of the current group of macroeconomists at the University of Bonn lie in the quantitative study of macroeconomics and heterogeneity. Macroeconomics at the University of Bonn builds on a strong departmental tradition in economic theory and econometrics.

We expect the candidate to be committed to excellence in teaching and supervising at the Bonn Graduate School of Economics and in the department's study programs. Teaching at the graduate level is in English. Teaching at the undergraduate level can be conducted in English or German.

The position is full-time. The expected start date is October 1, 2024. Formal requirements are regulated by §36 Higher Education Act of North Rhine-Westphalia (Hochschulgesetz des Landes Nordrhein-Westfalen). Candidates must hold a PhD in Economics and are expected to have a track record of high-quality research appropriate to the level of appointment.

To apply, please submit your application via the recruitment portal of the University: <https://berufungsportal.uni-bonn.de>. Applications received by September 13, 2023, are guaranteed full consideration.
