The Department of Political Science and Sociology at the Faculty of Arts of the University of Bonn is inviting applications for the tenure-track position of:

Junior Professorship (W1) with tenure-track (to W2) in Methods of Empirical Social Research with a Special Focus on Sociology of Medicine, Public Health or Nutrition

...to be filled at the earliest opportunity.

The position seeks an individual who can teach methods of empirical social research in all social science programs and establish a profile area of “Empirical Sociology of Medicine” in the sociology master’s program. A dedication to academic teaching and excellent teaching skills are required. A willingness to participate in interdisciplinary projects related to the sociology of medicine, public health, and nutrition is expected.

This professorship is funded by the Tenure Track Program of the German Federal and State Governments. Awarding tenure is not subject to a vacancy at the time when the fixed-term contract of the tenure-track position expires. This call is aimed at early-career researchers. Candidates who have completed their doctorate at the University of Bonn must have changed universities or been working in academic research outside of the University of Bonn at least two years prior to applying.

Application requirements are the ability to provide excellent research-oriented teaching and a completed doctoral degree.

Formal requirements are defined by § 36 of the Higher Education Act of North Rhine-Westphalia (Hochschulgesetz Nordrhein-Westfalen).
