The Institute for Macroeconomics at the department of economics of the University of Bonn is looking to hire a post-doctoral researcher (m/f)
(pay scale E 14 TV-L, 100 %)

The position can start on September 2018 or earlier and it will be initially filled for 3 years (shorter if desired) and is financed from the European Research Council and departmental funds. There is also a possibility of extension.

You have...
- a PhD degree economics, or a related field
- commensurate research experience from his/her doctoral studies

You are...
- motivated, open-minded, eager to learn
- experienced in working on functional data analysis of large household panels and/or the macroeconomic modeling of heterogeneous households in a framework of incomplete markets and nominal rigidities (a "HANK model")

We offer...
- You will work within the ERC project of Prof. Bayer, LiquidHouseCycle, studying the aggregate repercussions of time variations in the liquidity of household portfolios.
- A very light teaching load. The candidate will need to teach roughly one half-credit course, i.e. 30 hours, a year.
- Pay is according to the TV-L 14 scale.
- Eligibility to apply for a VRS-ticket for the public transportation system.

The University of Bonn is an equal-opportunity employer.

Applications received by November 21, 2017 will be given full consideration.

Applications should be submitted electronically use of the online form at http://www.mee.uni-bonn.de/jobs-and-vacancies/

Please arrange two to three letters of reference to be submitted directly to the following email address ejsc2017@uni-bonn.de.